Service Solutions

Covance provides the following analytical testing solutions to help you meet regulatory scrutiny and assure you are providing the safest products to your consumers.

Nutritional labeling

Regulatory requirements continue to become more complex. Our industry-leading scientists will work with you to develop a quality program to fit your needs and provide you with reliable, accurate nutrition information.

Functional food ingredient testing

Consumer health trends and advances in food technology have opened new development opportunities for functional and fortified foods. Covance is leading the way in this area with expertise and insights help you stand out in this increasingly crowded market.

Pesticide residue testing

Analysis of pesticide residues is essential to confirm that your ingredients and finished products are held to the highest brand standards. Our specialists use the latest methods and technologies in residue screening to ensure quality and build brand trust.

Contaminants and toxins

With Covance, your contaminant testing will be conducted using the latest analytical methods. You'll receive up-to-date analysis of chemical residues and contaminants to prepare your product to go to market.

Easy Access to Complete and Highly Secure Data

At Covance, we know that the results we provide are the foundation of our relationship. That's why we have taken every effort to assure that your results are secure and accessible. Our network and data centers are purpose-built to ensure your current and historic information is safe, secure and always available to you. SampleKinect® is your online portal to your information. Through here, you can track your samples and compare data anytime, anywhere.

Your Single Point of Contact

Working with a multi-site testing partner shouldn't feel like you're working with different companies. At Covance, you are assigned a client service associate who is your single point of contact. This dedicated liaison provides consistency and insights, from one project to the next—from shipping samples and status updates, to custom reports and analyzing results.

Globally Harmonized Methods

Our end-to-end sample management and identical testing methods ensure integrity and uniformity across our global laboratory network. We provide data you can trust to accelerate regulatory approvals.
